

Circles of Influence

The Psychological principle of control states that the more control we have over a situation or thing or the more control we perceive we have, the better we feel.

What is out my control ?

What is in my control right now?